

i5 web works Launches New Website for Southlake Chamber of Commerce

The new site adds more features and a contemporary look that reflects the progressive attitude of the community, while assisting residents and newcomers alike to keep abreast of developments in the city's business, government and social life.

Southlake, Texas (PRWeb) March 4, 2008 -- i5 web works has completed a total makeover of the online home of the Southlake Chamber of Commerce with the launch of a new Website that presents a comprehensive look at one of the nation's most esteemed cities.

The new portal styled site offers sections for visitors and residents alike, with detailed information about local businesses, government agencies, schools, events and other elements that have put Southlake at the top of the lists of families relocating to the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

"Southlake offers an excellent quality of life in a comfortable suburban setting, with convenient access to Fort Worth and Dallas," Chamber of Commerce President Giovanna Phillips, said. "i5 has built a Website that reflects the overall excellence of the community, from our top-rated schools to our prosperous business climate and city services."

i5 web works co-founder Carita Weaver said her company is especially pleased to have the opportunity to serve the community with its professional services. "Southlake is our home, too, and we wanted to ensure the chamber has a Website that attracts visitors & serves businesses and residents."

Michael Burns, also co-founder of i5, takes an active role in chamber activities. "Michael is highly respected in our city, which results from his professionalism and commitment to helping build the business community here," Phillips, said. "i5 built our previous Website, which was an award winner in its own right. Now we have created a new website, which has already won a design award before its public viewing."
